Even the Hollow My Body Made Is Gone

Poems by

Janice N. Harrington

*Winner of the 2006 A. Poulin, Jr. Poetry Prize
With a Foreword by Elizabeth Spires*

Janice N. Harrington's collection Even the Hollow My Body Made Is Gone was selected from over 900 manuscripts by judge Elizabeth Spires as winner of BOA's 5th annual A. Poulin, Jr. Poetry Prize. As Elizabeth Spires writes in her Foreword to the collection, "Like a stringed instrument that continues to vibrate after the musician has ceased playing, Harrington's poems resonate. Without in any way simplifying or ignoring the darker side of life—pain, loss, death, injustice—Harrington is a celebratory poet who sees with the fresh, wondering eye of a child, but knows with the mind and heart of an adult."

About the Poet

Janice N. Harrington's poems have appeared in many journals. She is the winner of an Illinois Arts Council Artists Fellowship Award in Poetry and an Illinois Arts Council Literary Award. For many years, she worked as a professional storyteller, telling stories at festivals around the country, including the National Storytelling Festival. She is also the author of two children's books, Going North (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 2004, winner of many awards, including the Ezra Jack Keats Award from the New York Public Library), and The Chicken Chasing Queen of Lamar County (Farrar, Straus and Giroux, forthcoming 2007). Harrington has a bachelor's in education from the University of Nebraska and a master's in library science from the University of Iowa. She was born in Alabama and now lives in Champaign, Illinois, where she is a librarian at the Champaign Public Library.
